When To Hire a Booking Agency
Consider Not Doing Everything Yourself
There Are Good Reasons Why Delegating Can Improve the Product

No Matter the Event or Venue, It's Time to Rethink Your Entertainment Booking Process

You've got a venue or multiple venues and you've been booking artists on your own with an assistant. Three months in and you're cycling through artists too quickly to properly build a following and you can't get any regional or national acts through the door. You are starting to burn out with all the juggling and feel like a fish going against the current.

If only we were born with 12 tentacles, multiple brains, and the ability to move things with our minds. Until then, we cannot do everything ourselves. Believe me, I've tried. And tried. You know the story always ends the same, so the lesson learned was that a proper delegation of integral duties was a necessity. Not only to thrive, but to even survive.

Delivering Peace of Mind for Your Events

Now that more and more promoters and venues know about this TSE service, we are getting more requests to have one of our concert/festival producers on site for their events. As one of our clients said as he jumped at the chance to have one:

"I have so many other things to handle at our event. I don't want to deal with all of the local production and run of show details. Sign me up to have a person on site for two days!"

TSE's producer on site at your event will handle all of the production and artists' issues for your event. The producer takes the load off of you and becomes your liaison to artists, local production contractors, stage hands, and any other groups or contractors to assure a smooth running entertainment event. With years of experience in handling all facets of any event, they have seen and handled anything that might arise at your event.

TSE producers deliver Peace of Mind to you and your staff.
That's why we call our producers; PoM People

TSE Launches Its Ambassador Program More Than a Street Team Extends Your Marketing Reach for Your Events

The program allows you to build a street team ambassador program for your event to automatically assign marketing tasks, track, and reward members on a team. Recruit from our database of current ambassadors already working for other event creators or add your own team. Track posters, flyers, and social media posts. You can even have them sell tickets and merchandise for you direct to friends with their own mobile point of sale.

- Sell more tickets!
- Auto track posters, flyers, and social posts
- Automatically recruit and reward

You determine the incentives for your ambassadors. By assigning points for activities, you reward the top ambassadors, with tickets, merchandise, Meet & Greet opportunities, vouchers, etc.
