4 Ways an Entertainment Agency Can Help

Why consider an entertainment agency for booking and other services?

The fact is that most entertainment venues do not have the luxury of a full-time talent booking person. The person who books talent for smaller venues is either the owner, manager, sound tech, bartender, or someone else who has another job at the venue. These venues think that booking talent this way saves them money.

Enter a quality entertainment agency. A good one can not only book the appropriate talent for your target market and budget but can assist you in other ways to have a successful entertainment venue.

An agency that books acts for similar venues as well as bigger venues full time is bound to be more adept at finding and negotiating performance and rider fees. They can save you money by replacing that part-time talent booker with a booking agent that has relationships with bands, their managers, and major agency booking agents. While you may book that band one time, an agency may book them repeatedly. Who do you think can get the best price?

Booking multiple venues enable them to set up routing gigs to save you additional money. A full-service entertainment agency can provide you other services such as online ticketing, local production, and other services.

Great entertainment agencies become your "partner" and invest effort to help you be successful. Such an agency can be a source of information as well to help your shows be prosperous.

Client Review: Another 5 Star Google Review (Actually all of our reviews are 5-Star)

They helped me so much for our benefit fundraiser for kids! Even when we had an artist cancel on us just a few days from our event, they were right there willing to help me find a replacement! I have used them for 3 years and will continue to use TSE in the future.
