Live Event Production Also Involves Safety

As a venue operator or festival organizer, you have many responsibilities—and one of the most important is keeping your events secure. How do you know if your venue is safe? If you don't have one already, create an emergency plan for your events.

Here are a few tips to think about as you get started on your emergency plan to assure the safety of your staff and attendees at your events. Whether it's a weather emergency, active shooter, bomb threat, fire, crowd incident or some other emergency, it's up to those doing the event production to address the risks involved.
